SPECIAL SANTA FOR THE DEAF.

Pacific Northwest Bell is sponsoring the program to allow hearing-impaired youngsters to "tell" Santa their Christmas wishes using sign language.

Acting as Santa will be Don Blankenship, PNB staff assistant deaf since birth. Jan Holler, PNB consumer affairs manager who suffered a severe hearing loss at age six, will serve as Mrs. Claus.

The Santa for the deaf will be at the mall Santa Booth December 13 from 1-3 p.m. and 6-8 p.m. An independent photographer will be available to take photos of the youngsters.

"ALL I WANT FOR CHRISTMAS..."

BLACKS ANDJEWISH LEADERS Trying To Restore Their Relationship

Blacks and Jewish Leaders have Joined together on Picket lines to protest apartheid in South Africa. Blacks and Jews have been reappraising their relationship. They say they are generally aware of the dynamics that reptured their coalition and of the sometimes competing agendas that split Black and Jewish Leaders, Leaders agree that it is in the interest of both minority groups to restore their alliance.

There had been repeatedly expressed dismay during the Presidential campaign over the reticence of some Black Leaders to denouce what were considered by many to be ethnic slurs by the Rev. Jessie Jackson and the Rev. Louis Farrakhan, the gesture by Jewish Leaders who joined Blacks in getting arrested at the South African Missions was welcome as a step toward reviving the coalition that propelled the Civil - Rights movement two decades ago.

Hijackers

The white House charged today that Iran took actions that encouraged the Arabi terrorists who hijacked a Kuwaiti airliner last week and killed two American officials.

The Administration also demanded in the strongest terms that Iran either prosecute the hijackers or turn them over to another country for trial. Secretary of State George P. Shultz, meanwhile, urged "strong action" against terrorists such as those who directed the hijacking of the Kuwaiti jetliner. Continuing his public encouragement of the use of force against terrorists, Mr. Shultz said in a news conference on his way to Britain today that a tough response would "command broad support" if handled carefully.

In a strong statement issued as soon as the White House received word that the two American survivors of the hijacking had left Iran with the other freed passengers aboard a plane for Kuwait, Larry Speakes, the press spokesman, said Iran's actions had raised "profound and disturbing questions, to which we are seeking answers."

"The fact of the matter is that two passengers were murdered by the hijackers, more were tortured and many were brutalized for an extended period of time without any effective measures being taken by the Government of Iran," Mr. Speakes said in a statement that he read to reporters in the White House briefing room.

"Granting selective media access, broadcasting statements and screams of tortured passengers, permitting photographers aboard the aircraft clearly encouraged extreme behavior by the hijackers," he continued.

"The passengers, the families of the murdered passengers and the world deserve answers from the Government of Iran," Mr. Speakes said. He added that President Reagan was personally outraged by the incident.

There have been repeated assertions from American officials here this week that Iran was in collusion with the hijackers.

Without commenting directly on those assertions, Mr. Speakes said: "Previous actions by the Government of Iran have shown that it has the capability to act rapidly and effectively to end hijackings when it so wishes.

Charles Kapar, a hostage on Kuwaiti jetliner, saying goodbye to one of plane's stewards. Mr. Kapar and John Costa, the other U.S. hostage, said stewards "formed a buffer" between the Americans and the hijackers.

Ethiopians Blames West For Famine

The two surviving American hostages of the hijacked Kuwaiti airliner arrived with other freed passengers and said they had seen no evidence of Iranian complicity in their six-day ordeal. But in Karachi, two Pakistani passengers said on their arrival there that Iranian authorities had supplied the hijackers with weapons, ropes and handcuffs, according to reports reaching here.

Later in the day, the Americans left Kuwait in a United States Air Force Plane for West Germany, where the bodies of the two slain Americans were taken today from Teheran.

In Teheran, Ayatollah Khomeini issued an evaluation of the whole afair, saying, "In the hostage affair, which was condemned by all Iranian officials and which was solved in a satisfactory way, they still say Iran had a hand in it.

"This shows they were apprehensive," the Ayatollah concluded.

Before leaving Kuwait, the Americans were asked if there had been collusion between their four Arab captors and the authorities at Teheran airport. "There was absolutely no cooperation I could see," said John Costa, a New York businessman. "None, absolutely none." ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Dec. 11 - Senior Ethiopian officials said today that the Western nations involved in emergency relief efforts are largely to blame for the extent of the famine devastating the people of this nation. "What makes us angry and deeply sad at the same time," said Dawit Wolde Giorgis, head of Ethiopia's Relief and Rehabilitation Commission, "is that what is happening in many parts of the country now could so easily have been prevented."

He said Ethiopian authorities had predicted the scope of the disaster early this year.

"Had the international donor community taken these facts and figures seriously," Mr. Dawit said, "and had its response matched the identified needs, it would now have been able to claim credit for the prevention of the death and suffering so many whose lives we could easily have saved with the surplus and waste that exist in most donor countries."

Instead, he said, "days of indifference turned into moths of apathy" as Ethiopia was "forgotten by a world glutted with a surplus of grain."

WORDS OF WISDOM

HAVE YOU BELIEVE OUR REPORT?

SERIES #47

ISAIAH 53: 1&2

Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?

For he shall grow up before him as a root out of dry ground.

He hath no form nor comiliness: and when we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him.

PSALMS 69 : 20

DAVID COMPLAINS OF AFFLICTIONS

save me, O God; for the waters are come in unto my soul.

I sink in deep mire, where there is no standing: I am come into deep waters, where the floods overflow me.

I am weary of my God.

They that hate me without a cause are more than the hairs of mine head: they that would destroy me, being mine enemies wrongfully, are mightly: then I restored that which I took not away.

O God, thou knowest my foolishness; and my sins are not hid from thee.

Let not them that wait on thee, O Lord God of hosts, be ashamed for my sake: let not those that seek thee be confounded for my sake, O God of Israel.

Because for thy sake I have borne reproach; shame hath covered my face.

I am become a stranger unto my brethren, and an alien unto my moither's children.

For the zeal of thine house hath eaten me up; and the reproaches of them that reproached thee are fallen upon me.

When I wept, and chastened my soul with fasting, that was to my reproach.

I made sackcloth also my garment; and I became proverb to them.

They that sit in the gate speak against; and I was the song of the frunkards.

But as for me, my prayer is unto thee, O Lord, in an acceptable time: O God, in the multitude of thy mercy hear me, in the truth of thy salvation.

Deliver me out of the mire, and let me not sink: let me be delivered from them that hate me, and out of the deep waters.

Let not the waterflood overflow me, neither let the deep swallow me up, and let not the pit shut her mouth upon me.

Hear me, O Lord; for thy lovingkindness is good: turn unto me according to the multitude of thy tender mercies.

And hide not thy face from thy servant; for I am in trouble: hear me speedily.

Draw nigh unto my soul, and redeem it: deliver me because of mine enemies.

Thou hast known my reproach, and my shame, and my dishonour: mine adversaries are all before thee.

If extreme weather conditions force the closure of Tacoma Public Schools, it will be anounced in early morning hours on all local radio stations, says Kay Engelsen, public information officer.

If schools are operating on a regular schedule but with limited transportation, buses will run only on main streets and arterials, there will be no school for Kindergarten, Head Start, or handicapped students, and the Bates Vocational-Technical Institute will remain open. This week's first prize Jackpot: $1,200,000 Lotto

You could win thousands, even millions, when you play Lotto, the new game from the Washington State Lottery. Because the jackpot grows 'til somebody wins! It's fun to play, and it's easy.

How to play.

Pick up a free Lotto play slip at any On-Line Games Agent. The play slip is divided into 10 games, each with a field of numbers from 1 to 40.

Decide how many games you want to play. You play two games for a dollar, and can play up to 10 games on a single play slip. The minimum play is one dollar.

Pick 6 numbers out of 40 for each game you play. Using pen or pencil (not red), mark the 6 numbers you've selected on the play slip for each game. Games must be played in pairs. You receive two games for each $1 played.

Hand the completed play slip to your On-Line Agent. The agent will enter it into the Ticket Distribution Machine, which will print out a Lotto ticket showing the numbers you selected, the drawing date, and the amount you played. The agent will return your play slip for possible future use.

Check your ticket. It is your responsibility to check your Lotto ticket to make sure it corresponds with the numbers you selected. Be sure to keep your ticket until after that week's drawing, as proof of purchase.

Quick Play option. If you prefer, the On-Line computer will randomly select six numbers for each game you wish to play. Just tell the Agent you want a "Quick Play" and state how many games you're playing.

How much you can win.

Evergreen Lotto is a parimutuel game, so the size of the jackpot depends upon how many people play. If more than one person wins, they share the Jackpot equally. The Lottery guarantees that the cash value of the First Prize Jackpot will be at least $500,000, no matter how many people play.

It could grow into the millions—all for the person (or to be divided equally among the persons) who match in any order all 6 winning numbers.

The second prize share is divided among all players who match 5 out of 6 winning numbers in any order and the third prize share is divided among all those who match 4 out of 6 winning numbers in any order. These prizes are determined by total Lotto sales and number of winners each week.

All prizes with a cash value of $250,000 or more will be paid in the form of a multiple-year annuity.

How to collect your prize.

Winning amounts will be announced to the public through the media and On-Line Sales Agents every Monday at 9 a.m. Prizes of up to $600 can be collected at any On-Line location. Winners of larger amounts must file a claim form with the Lottery. Forms are available from any Lottery Agent.

PSALM 94: 15

O Lord God, to whom vengeance belongeth; O God, to whom vengeance belongeth, shew thyself.

Lift up thyself, thou judge of the earth: render a reward to the proud.

Lord, how long shall the wicked, how long shall the wicked triumph?

How long shall they utter and speak hard things? and all the workers of iniquity boast themselves?

They break in pieces thy people, O Lord, and afflict thine heritage.

They slay the widow and the stranger, and murder the fatherless.

Yet they say, The Lord shall not see, neither shall the God of Jacob regard it.

Understand, ye brutish among the people: and ye fools, when will ye be wise?

He that planted the ear, shall be not hear? he that formed the eye, shall be not see?

He that chastiseth the heathen, shall not he correct? he that teacheth man knowledge, shall not he know?

The Lord knoweth the thoughts of man, that they arevanity.

Blessed is the man whom thou chastenest, O Lord, and teachest him out of thy law;

That thou mayest give him rest from the days of adverstiy, until the pit be digged for the wicked.

For the Lord will not caset off his people, neither will he forsake his inheritance.

We welcome news of your church and civic events.

KTAC To Broadcast Original Musical Version Of Scrooge".

Tacoma -- KTAC Radio has produced an original musical version of the family holiday favorite, "Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol", renamed "SCROOGE". The adaptation of the Dickens' classic was written by KTAC Operations Manager and Morning Air Personality, Rob Sherwood, who created new lyrics to Broadway tunes for this 140-year-old Christmas story. Over 100 hours of production time was necessary to produce the 40-minute KTAC version. "SCROOGE" will broadcast on KTAC at 7:00 PM. and Midnight on Christmas Eve, and 10:00 AM. on Christmas Day (December 24/25, 1984).

KTAC Afternoon Drive Personality, Rick Austin, narrates the story which introduces us to famous characters like Bob Cratchet, Marley's Ghost, The Ghosts of Christmas Past, Present and Future, and Tiny Tim, all played by various KTAC Air and News STaff Members. The part of Ebeneezer Scrooge is played by Rob Sherwood.

Application For Open Space Due Soon.

Sheldon Cook, Pierce County Assessor-Treasurer, announced today that landowners who wish current use assessment for property tax purposes on lands eligible for classification under the open space law, must submit an application to the Pierce County Assessor-Treasurer's Office by December 31, 1984, in order to receive consideration for 1985 property assessment.

Providing that acreage continues being used as originally intended, valuation of land for tax purposes under the Open Space Act is determined on the basis of "current use" rather than "highest and best use". Under circumstances where land use is changed or withdrawn, the land becomes liable for tax roll-back penalties withdrawn, as long as remaining acreage meets the original requirements.

The Open Space Act requires that any agricultural lands approved for classification must be used for livestock or agricultural production. Farms with less than 20 acres are subject to minimum earnings in order to qualify.

Timberland owners should be aware that parcels of five or more acres will qualify under open space if forest crops are grown and harvested. Another option is that forest land of 20 or more acres could be designated under the timber Act if the owner so requests.

Property owners may direct inquiries concerning the open space designation to Carl Hansen, Forester for Pierce County Assessor-Treasurer's Office, at 591-7137.

A small processing fee must be submitted with the application, and is refundable should open space classification by rejected.

Too Much Vitamin D May Mean Trouble

(Tacoma, Washington.) - If you take calcium supplements, check to see that you are not getting too much vitamin D, whicih is toxic, according to Olga Fuste', Washington State University's Pierce County Cooperative Extension Agent.

The Cooperative Extension Agent says that the recommended amount of vitamin D is 400 international units. If a person takes the recommended 800 to 1200 milligrams of calcium of some supplements, it can add up to more than 400 IU of vitamin D. Over a period of weeks and months more than 400 IU of vitamin D can lead to toxicity.

Vitamin D toxicity is characterized by weakness and fatigue, loss of appetite and eventual damage to the heart, liver and kidney.

Concern about vitamin D has surfaced because more women are taking calcium supplements to prevent osteoporosis, the disease of weakened bones.

Most people get enough vitamin D., Fuste' says. In fact, vitamin D is produced naturally when sunlight touches the skin. Ergosterol, a substance in skin, is converted to active vitamin D by ultraviolet light.

NO BLACKS WANTED

The Democratic Party has hung out a new sign: No Blacks or liberals wanted. And for Blacks who are liberals (most Black elected officials) that goes double.

That definition, of course, goes for just about every Black person in Congress. Furthermore, the Democratic Party leaders, all White, are making no excuses for their eclusion of Blacks in search of a new image.

Charles Robb, Governor of Virginia and chairman of the 35 member Democratic Governors' Association, said that it is "socially member Democratic Governors' Association, said that it is "socially unacceptable" to his party for White males to now identify with the Republican Party. His party, Robb insists, must win them back. One way to do that, he says, is to eliminate the Black Caucus of the Democratic National Committee inorder to diffuse the image that the party caters to "special interests." Furthermore, Gov. Robb, a party rising star, said that he had no idea how the Democrats could appeal to White male and keep the only dependable voting bloc they have left. Keeping the Blacks would be "a challenge," he said.

That's pretty clear to me. Blacks are an embarassment to Democrats and an impediment to the building of the "new breed" image (meaning against social programs and 'special interests" that favor Blacks). Another obstacle to that image is Rep. William H. Gray's campaign to become chairman of the House Budget Committee.

The Black Philadelphia congressman is one of the most able members of the House and a loyal supporter of his party, everyone admits. But in the rush to move white Westerners, an image of the "new breed" Democratic conservatism, into the leadership, Gray's qualifications and loyalty amount to trivia.

Rep. George Miller, a reputed California liberal, proposed a change in the rules that would have allowed (it lost by a narrow vote) Rep. James Jones (D-OK), advocate of a new "passionate conservatism," to remain on the committee and run for chairman. Ever heard the joke that says when we get there, they change the rules? It's not a joke. And the White Democrats in congress made it plain. They wanted to allow Jones to remain, they argued, because they are building a new "image" (yes, they used the word). "Image--what do you mean by that?" Rep. Parren Mitchell of Baltimore wanted to know--knowing what was meant.

If the party doesn't want a William Gray as an imge, who does it want? The White "new breed" Democrats. They have been in the House for about 10 years now and are opposed to gret Society programs. Much of their time is spent looking line-by-line for "wasteful programs." Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri fits the image perfectly. His description in The Washington Post is tailor-made: "Conservatively dressed, his neatly cropped red hair carefully in place and his voice well-modulated, he is the perfect television-age candidate. At 43, Gephardt seems like the Eagle Scout he once was."

"conservatively dressed...television-age...Eagle scout"--you don't need a psychic to know what's being said.

It's hard to accuse the White Democrats of racism because they are appealing to whites who outnumber Blacks by 10 to 1 and vote more heavily than Blacks. But you have to have enough common sense to know that Gephardt's "social conservatism" is the Democratic Party's New White Frontier, racism not withstanding.

Americans have now, a poll says, moved "right of center." More Americans than ever claim affiliation with the Republican Party--including many Democratic White members of Congress who are in fact Republicans.

The bottom line is that Black who are Democrats don't have to become Republicans, but they owe it to their constituents to avoid exploitation in the name of party loyalty.

Fine. But how do we turn these lofty generalities into workable specifics? This and next week, I shall discuss a few of the programs around which Black Americans could logically rally, and take a look at a possible vehicle for carrying this unity forward.

One agenda that is being prominently advanced these days-- especially by Blacks in the Reagan administration and those coveting such status-- calls for putting government support of social programs and direct government action on the backburner. Followers of this line instead argue that Blacks should drvote their energies to fuller participation in the private sector of the economy in order to get their share of the "American dream." In other words, this thinking goes, Blacks should join in the grand march to create full employment through expansion of the private sector, with Blacks playing an ever expanding role as "movers and shakers" in this enlargement.

Undoubtedly the scheme (assuming the improbable that the white power structure would let Blacks into the inner sanctum in any appreciable numbers) would "integrate the status quo" by producing a few more Black millionaires. But would this approach really help in eliminating, or even slowing the growth of, the Black underclass? The black masses are being called upon to ignore the history of the pre-Roosevelt failure of this philosophy and simply wait for prosperity to trickle down from the coffers of the rich to them and the rest of the poor and disadvantaged.

Those arguing further against this notion "business can do it all" point out: that the growth of American industry has been undermined by a deterioration of its base because of the decline of basic industries; and that employment capabilities within the economy are being further eroded by the substitution of capital- intensive high technology industries for basic labor-intensive industries, such as coal, steel, and textile manufacturing. If this trend is permitted to continue, it is pointed out, instead of creating suitable, full-employment prosperity, this country will end up as a nation of high-paid technocrats and low-paid floor sweepers.

Another program which being pushed as a high priority agenda for Black liberation is acceleration of Black political efforts through creation of a Black political party. This party, which would be independent of the Republican, Democratic, and all other parties, would be created at the local level all across the country. Thus freed of entanglement with the Democratic Party in the major cities and other areas where the Black population is large, Black would be free to push exclusively for Black interests, whether those interests are political, economic, social or otherwise.

One of the outspoken proponents of this approach is Atty. Thomas Todd, one of the founders of Operation PUSH who became that organization's interim president last year when Rev. Jesse Jackson resigned to seek the U.S. presidency. "The hope of Black America is in Black America," Atty. Todd has written. "It is better to build our own house than to rent a room and a kitchen in somebody else's house. We must start immediately to build a third political force at the local level. The criteria for support should not be political allegiance but rather' Racial Self-Interest. It is the American way."

The strongest counter-argument against this approach is that a strictly Black political party would be limited by its own isolation; that, in practical terms, it is doubtful it could exert any more influence than is already exerted by the Black wing of the Democratic Party in major cities.

Those arguing against the idea further point out that a Black political party would never have a chance of becoming a major party nationwide, and that no progressive political force should ever, voluntarily, relegate itself to a secondary role.

This is the second article in a three-part series exploring what Blacks should do in light of the November election results.

Action Priorities And Vehicles For Unity

I have concluded my last three columns since Ronald Reagan's landslide win over Walter Mondale by calling for unity of purpose and action among Black Americans. In one column I stated,"...We must mobilize to build unity among Blacks around the most advanced political, social and economic positions attainable. We must become more racial in order to make America less racist." In another column I used these words: "We must build unity among ourselves by developing bold agendas and setting creative priorities. During this period, which is not unlike thse dark and distant days immediately following Reconstruction, we cannot afford the luxury of fractured and fragmented approaches to our problems."

Famine Relief Urgent

The worst famine in Africa's history is raging through that continent. Drought has hit an area that includes some 30 countries officially listed as "hungry." As many as half a million people may have already died from starvation, and many millions more are in danger of the same fate.

Ethiopia has been in the spotlight, primarily because a television camera crew beamed pictures of famine victims that tore at the hearts of viewers around the world. But other countries are also suffering. In Mozambique, for example, 100,000 people died in a famine a year ago, and still more victims are expected from the current disaster.

International food aid is on the way, but that help will not reach all of the victims, due to difficulties in getting the food into the remote places where hunger is greatest.

The tragedy of the famine is that it could have been averted. It is unconscionable that persistent hunger in the world's poor countries has been largely ignored, and that steps to prevent famine were not taken.

There is no reason for the chronic food shortage in many poor nations to have been allowed to develop into full-scale famine that kills hundreds of thousands of people, and destroys the lives of millions of children whose physical and mental development is stifled by hunger and disease.

The current famine was predicted two years ago, and a similar famine a decade ago gave international food aid bodies experience in recognizing the warning signals and in mobilizing emergency assistance.

There's enough blame to go around. Certainly the governments of many of the affected nations bear much of the blame. In addition to following agricultural policies that drove people off the land and into cities where they could not find work, some ignored the sufferings of their own people.

Both superpowers have been more interested in selling arms and using poor countries as pawns in their rivalry, than in assisting economic development and food sufficiency. And the international community was slow to respond to the visible signs of the impending crisis, while the media was simply bored by what it sees as the same old story of African hunger.

Now that attention has finally been given to the famine, enough aid must reach the starving to minimize the devastation. But that's not enough. In the last famine, aid was sent and then donors walked away from a continent that was still hungry and still needed help to avert to another catastrophe.

This time, permanent programs of international food aid should be maintained to ensure that famine is not followed by the permanent hunger that is the lot of up to 100 million people in Africa.

International organizations should set up early warning systems that trigger massive food aid before a famine occurs, not after. Permanent grain reserves should be established so that when famine threatens, stocks could be release to the endangered areas.

An international program to strengthen the fragile infrastructures of threatened countries should be inaugurated, so that lack of roads and port facilities do not hamper delivery of food aid in future crises.

And an ongoing program of technical assistance should be aimed at economic development and food production growth.

These and other steps should be taken to avoid the horrible situation that occurs when some human beings starve while, around the world, silos bulge with surplus grain and people worry about overeating.

Your Weekly Spinal Column. By Doctor Gordon Rody.

Increase Your Resistance

Some people are susceptible to illness because their resistance is low.

They should endeavor to raise their resistance and, thus lower their susceptibility to illness.

Life force must be shut off before the body is susceptible, and resistance is lowered in proportion to the degree in which life force is shut off.

Chiropractic Principle

Chiropractic teaches that sub-normal resistance is due to a lack of functional impulses sent out over nerves because a vertebra is out of alignment and pressing on nerves.

These impulses emanate from the brain, are transmitted down the main cable, called the spinal cord, and branch out to all parts of the body.

When these vertebrae get out of alignment, they interfere with nerves and impair function.

The severity of illness depends upon the degree to which the life force is shut off by a vertebra impairing nerves.

How Chiropractic Helps

Chiropractors help the body to increase resistance and reduce susceptibility by adjusting the misaligned vertebra, thereby releasing the imprisoned life impulse.

Letter To The Editor.

Dear Rosa:

On behalf of United Way of Pierce County and its member agencies, we would like to extend a personal thank you.

General Campaign Chairman William B. Dearborn announced (Nov. 14) that United Way of Pierce County surpassed its goal of $3,843,913 - collecting $3,887,225.

Mr. Dearborn attributed the success of the campaign to many factors. However, he repeatedly mentioned the important and major role the media played in the fall drive. This year's media promotion and news coverage were outstanding - the best!

We appreciated your personal assistance in helping us tell the United Way story and raising the money necessary to support 97 human-service programs operated by 48 agencies. Thanks to your promotion and news efforts, more than 255,800 Pierce County people will be able to get help in 1985.

Again, thanks for sharing that spirit... the United Way!

Sincerely, Roy Kimbel, Volunteer Communictions Chairman. 272-4263.
